FöReMa – Society for the Promotion of the Museum of Religion and the Study of Religions in Marburg

The Society promotes the study, academic research and teaching as well as public relation activities of the Study of Religions Unit at Philipps University Marburg. It supports the Museum of Religion financially and with volunteering to extend, preserve, explore and present its collections. The Society maintains strict neutrality in regard to political, religious and ideological views.

The Study of Religions Unit

This university unit (Fachgebiet) belongs to the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences. Focus areas of the Marburg Study of Religions Unit are, apart from a well-founded instruction in theory and method of the discipline, religions in Asia and Europe in history and present, Islam in all its facets as well as materiality and visual culture of religion.

Museum of Religion

The Museum belongs to the Religionskundliche Sammlung, a university institution. This university collection was founded by Rudolf Otto in 1927 and portrays the diversity of religions by presently over 8000 objects from all over the world. It houses a unique stock of materials for the academic study of religions in history and present. Opening hours for the public and guided tours provide everyone with the opportunity to learn about a wide range of fascinating religious cultures.
